

Do models with more accurate trees also recover parameters more accurately?

One point per model (mean across grid cells). Down-and-left = better on both axes.

